

FAMILY WORKSHEET

We put together some questions for you to answer about your kids so that you can be ready to support them on their journey to finding their gifts. Take a few minutes to jot down some notes before you talk with your kids!

What is your child fascinated by?

What does your child enjoy doing the most?

What is something your child does naturally without a lot of effort?

What does your child want to do or be as an adult? Why? What about that excites your child the most?

What is a favorite memory or experience for your child? What about that does your child like the most?

When was a time your child helped someone else? What did your child do? Who did your child help?

What is your child frustrated by? Your child might have a talent that can help solve a problem.

Are there any jobs adults do in the church that your child would like to do someday (teaching, cleaning, cooking, leading, ushering, etc.)?

Some kids have gifts that are not immediately recognizable.
Maybe your kid is not a singer or athlete. But they might be a . . .

STORYTELLER

Can bring to life a real or fictional story
(e.g., a Bible story, something experienced, or a made-up tale)

WORDSMITH

Uses lots of fun words or is a great speller.

ENTERTAINER

Knows a lot of movies, music, and pop culture.

ENCOURAGER

Speaks kindly of others and shows empathy.

RECORDER

Can imitate voices and sounds really well.

EXPLORER

Tends to be curious and enjoys discovering new things.

DREAMER

Has very interesting dreams, whether or not they're asleep!

Do any of these remind you of your kids? Does your child have a similar gift, not on this list?
